

Dear Father

Dear Father,

I have completed my apprenticeship. Thank you for all you have taught me. I am going to seek the Royal Sulphur from Razvani, the Fire-Fiend, and I shall probably not see you again.

Your ex-daughter,

Lila

At the start of Chapter 2, Lila writes a letter to her father to explain where she has gone. Imagine you are Lila and write a more detailed version of this letter, explaining carefully where you have gone and why, as well as how you feel.

Dear Father,

I have completed my apprenticeship and would like to _____ you for everything you have taught me about making _____.

However, I feel very _____ that you have chosen not to trust me with the _____ of firework-making. I am a very _____ firework-maker already and this is the only thing I want to do. I want to be like _____! You have left me no _____ but to go in search of the _____ myself. I will find

_____, the Fire-Fiend and take my chances. Don't try to _____ me because you won't be able to change my mind. I am _____ to try and I may never see you again

Your ex-daughter, Lila

Dear Father

Missing Words

secret determined Razvani
choice

talented disappointed thank fireworks

follow
Royal Sulphur
you

Dear Father

Dear Father,

I have completed my apprenticeship. Thank you for all you have taught me. I am going to seek the Royal Sulphur from Razvani, the Fire-Fiend, and I shall probably not see you again.

Your ex-daughter,

Lila

At the start of Chapter 2, Lila writes a letter to her father to explain where she has gone. Imagine you are Lila and write a more detailed version of this letter, explaining carefully where you have gone and why, as well as how you feel.

Dear Father,

I am writing to you because _____

Firstly _____

In addition _____

Have you considered _____

Furthermore _____

Dear Father

Remember to think about...

How hard you have worked/how important firework-making is to you.

You are not a child anymore/you are independent - don't need a husband.

You are very good at making fireworks and feel disappointed not to be trusted.

Dear Father

Dear Father,

I have completed my apprenticeship. Thank you for all you have taught me. I am going to seek the Royal Sulphur from Razvani, the Fire-Fiend, and I shall probably not see you again.

Your ex-daughter,

Lila

At the start of Chapter 2, Lila writes a letter to her father to explain where she has gone. Imagine you are Lila and write a more detailed version of this letter, explaining carefully where you have gone and why, as well as how you feel.

Dear Father,

Dear Father

Remember to think about...

How hard you have worked/how important firework-making is to you.

You are not a child anymore / you are independent - don't need a husband.

You are very good at making fireworks and feel disappointed not to be trusted.