

ON THE RUN

Chase scenes are common in novels and films. In this description, a number of key words are missing. Fill in the blanks using the list of words provided. Use the context of each sentence as a guide.

The _____ is so poor in the back streets in the dead of night, that it takes a jagged knife of _____ to streak across the sky before I can see the way ahead. I have to _____ the fact that no one dares step outside _____ me. So _____ going to know or care _____ car this is? The police will surely _____ if I try to tell them there is a killer robot on the _____. I could easily end up as one of the _____ in the local hospital for disturbed personalities! Anyway, I'm only too _____ of the fact that it's me that thing is after, and, in all _____ I can't let it wreak havoc in my city. No time to hang around and become some kind of robot _____. Heading out to the _____ is my one chance. _____ the suburbs, out past the city limits and be as _____ as I can in planning my next move. Put a _____ mileage between me and it before that final _____ down into Death Valley. _____ by the stars, the dirt road snakes away into the unknown – my only hope of not being _____.

